

— BY THE NUMBERS

52.2 million

American workers have been bullied at work.

You are not the only one. These numbers show it.

32.3%

of adult Americans say they've been bullied at work directly.

72%

are aware workplace bullying happens

74.8M

workers affected when you count witnesses

Source: Workplace Bullying Institute, 2024 U.S. Workplace Bullying Survey (Zogby Analytics)

75%

of the time, the bully acted alone. That's part of why it's hard to prove.

55%
of bullies were bosses

29%
were peers of equal rank

Source: Workplace Bullying Institute, 2024 U.S. Workplace Bullying Survey (Zogby Analytics)

The target usually pays more than the bully.

Targets who lost their job

62%

Bullies who faced any consequence

27%

Targets lost their jobs through being forced out, fired, transferred, or quitting.

Source: Workplace Bullying Institute, 2024 U.S. Workplace Bullying Survey (Zogby Analytics)

2%

of the time, coworkers stepped in to help the target.

If nobody helped you, that doesn't prove you deserved it. Not helping is the norm, and the norm is broken.

Source: Workplace Bullying Institute, 2024 U.S. Workplace Bullying Survey (Zogby Analytics)

47%

was the pooled rate of bullying among people with autism, across 34 studies.

44%
pooled rate of any victimization

34
studies of children and adults

If you're different from the people in power, the odds are already stacked against you.

Source: Trundle et al. (2023), Trauma, Violence, & Abuse. Rates varied a lot between studies.

87%

of Americans support a law that would protect workers from bullying.

Conservatives, moderates, and liberals all said yes. People are ready for this conversation.

Source: Workplace Bullying Institute, 2024 U.S. Workplace Bullying Survey (Zogby Analytics)

READ THE SERIES

Behind every number is a person checking whether they're crazy.

I'm writing my story, with sources, on Substack.

Link in bio. Share this with your team chat. Or don't, and share it with the friend who'll understand.